HANDICAPPED.

The man who started to run a race in chains and fetters would be visibly handicapped. No one would expect him to succeed. The man who runs the race of life when his digestive and nutritive organs are diseased is equally handicapped. In the one case his strength is over-weighted, in the other it is under-weighted. Success demands above all else a sound stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. $3,000 FORTUIT was paid by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they could show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine out of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, and thus against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

CALEB POWERS SPEAKS IN HIS OWN BEHALF.

Makes no Bid for Sympathy, but in a Many Way Discusses the Testimony, Basing His Plea Solely on the Ground of His Innocence.

ANALYZES CLOSELY EVIDENCE OF COMMONWEALTH.

Declares that no One but a Lunatic Would Enter into a Plot to do Murder and Then Lend an Assassin His Office as a Place of Ambush.

Georgetown, Ky., August 27.—Before an audience that filled every seat and packed every aisle and window sill in the Circuit Court room, and before a jury that leaned forward and listened as attentively as if this had been the first instead of the fourth week of the trial, former Secretary of State Caleb Powers, charged as an accessory before the fact to the murder of William Goebel, argued his own case for two hours to night in a manner at once lawyer-like and convincing, and free from any unmanly bid for sympathy. Two and a half hours of the time allowed the defendant to argue for his life and liberty yet remain, and the argument will be resumed at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning, and concluded at 11:30, or perhaps at noon, as Judge Robbins usually allows the speaker and the jury several brief intervals of rest in the course of an argument.

MAKES FAVORABLE IMPRESSION. Starting with a discussion of the political question with which the case is inseparably involved, and making several straightforward statements that it is conceded were hazardous before a jury of Goebel men, the defendant passed on to a discussion of his case which, while it was not fairly under way when he was interrupted by the adjournment of court, impressed his hearers very favorably, and judging from appearance made a favorable impression upon the twelve Bourbon county men into whose hands his fate will be committed at the conclusion of the argument of Commonwealth's Attorney Robert B. Franklin, who will follow him tomorrow afternoon.

A POLITICAL QUESTION. After his preliminary remarks and an appeal to the jury not to let political passion or political affiliation influence the verdict, Powers said that the question of his guilt or innocence was a political question, and that the prosecution expected the jury to decide it as such, but that he did not believe that they would do so, but to the contrary believed that they would accord him the same hearing and grant him the same impartial trial that they would grant a man from their own country.

EFFECT OF GOEBEL'S DEATH. He then pointed out the fact that the death of William Goebel could mean nothing but disaster to the Republican party at the contest, and argued that he could not have had a motive to procure his death, then, taking up the course of procedure adopted after the murder, he showed that many of the men at first charged with the crime or complicity in the plot were afterwards admitted to be guilty, and argued that the prosecution had from the beginning made an error in trying to fasten the guilt upon Republican leaders and in trying to prove that the murder resulted from a political conspiracy.

NARROWED DOWN TO TWO. Showing that the prosecution had now narrowed the actual commission of the crime down to the question of whether Jim Howard or Henry Yontsey done it, he said that there was not one word of testimony to show that he knew or communicated with Jim Howard before the assassination, or that he knew Yontsey before January 1, 1900, or spoke to him about William Goebel before January 29.

"UNKNOWN MAN" ELIMINATED. In the course of the argument the defendant said that he did not know whether Yontsey and Howard and Taylor entered into any conspiracy, and was not arguing Taylor's case, but would leave that to him. He said that no matter whether Yontsey or Howard did the killing, the man to the jury unknown was eliminated from the case as a misfit, and that on the proof relied upon by the prosecution no man of those brought from the mountains committed the crime. The speaker had just declared that none but a lunatic would enter into a plot and lend an assassin his office for a place of ambush, when he was

MOUNTAIN WELCOME TO BELKNAP

Immense Crowd Greeted Him at London.

Republican Standard-Bearer Talks to the Point.

Importance of All Uniting to Restore Commonwealth to Its Rightful Position.

SAFEGUARDS NEEDED FOR ALL.

London, Ky., 29.—Col. Morris B. Belknap, the Republican nominee for Governor, was the busiest man in London to-day, and the most sought-after individual on the Laurel county fair grounds, where, according to the statement of Secretary E. A. Clifton, over 7,000 people paid admission to see the fair and hear Col. Belknap speak.

Col. Belknap, accompanied by Hon. Joseph A. Craft, reached London at 3:10 this morning on the Louisville and Nashville train after an all-night's ride, and was assigned to quarters at the Riley Hotel. By 7 o'clock he was astride and on the street and, in company with Col. Dillon, Congressman Vincent Boring, Judge Robert Boyd and several other representative Republicans, made the rounds of the various business houses. His tour embraced all classes of people, for early as the hour was, the streets were thronged with excursionists from all parts of Laurel and adjoining counties, and he met and shook hands with several hundred before 10 o'clock, the hour he was to visit the fair grounds.

His entrance to the grounds called for a repetition of his early morning work, but on a larger scale. Standing beside Judge Boring, Col. Belknap, without moving from a space less than six feet square, met and grasped the hands of more than 3,000 people. The crowd surged from all parts of the grounds when his arrival became known, and stood packed about him awaiting their turn to shake his hand. It was a remarkable demonstration, participated in by not a few women and hundreds of voters, whom excursion trains had brought from Knox, Clay, Owensley, Leslie, Jackson, Rockcastle, Whitley and Pulaski counties.

THIS LOOKS GOOD TO ME. "I want to see the next Governor," was the remark heard on all sides, and Col. Belknap, who had got busy hours before, stood laughing and replying, often exclaiming: "All right, boys, I am glad to be with you. This looks good to me."

"We have been buying goods from your house for years, Mr. Belknap, and we are for you for anything you want," was a statement the Republican nominee was called upon to acknowledge, which he did in his usual happy, pleasing manner.

At 11:20 o'clock, the announcement was made that Col. Belknap would address the crowd from the speaker's stand, resulting in a stampede being made for the race course, facing the stand and amphitheater, the latter with a seating capacity of 3,000 being packed to suffocation.

On the race course was a sea of upturned faces directed to the speaker's stand on which were seated Congressman Boring, Col. Dillon, former State Senator Christian Stege, of Louisville, Judge Black, candidate for State Treasurer, Col. Belknap, Judge Robert Boyd and Col. T. C. Williams. Congressman Boring introduced Col. Belknap as the next Governor of Kentucky, and a man who all his life had been identified with the business of the State, a gentleman and soldier.

STATE DEVELOPMENT. Tumultuous applause greeted Col. Belknap as he acknowledged the introduction. His remarks were limited to a five-minute effort with State development his theme. Col. Belknap said: "Ladies and Gentlemen, and fellow-citizens of Kentucky, it gives me unbounded pleasure to meet every one of you to-day, you, the men of the hills and mountains, the representative plain people of Kentucky. We are a union for the good of Kentucky and the re-establishment of the grand old Commonwealth to its proper station in the galaxy of States where rightfully belongs."

"It has been said you who reside in the mountains and the valleys are not of the standard that go to make up the men of our cities, but I say to you when we get close together, our eyes are on the same level, our height, about the same standard, is equal, though our position in life may appear to you different, and we all have the interest of the good old State at heart. It is a common interest that cannot be lightly brushed aside.

SPEAKS TO THE POINT. "I will not attempt to tax your patience to-day by a discussion of public questions, but will briefly define my attitude in this campaign. I heard good advice given at the beginning of this campaign, when the subject of speech-making was under discussion, and that is, if you have anything to say, say it, and then stop talking. I don't belong to the class of public speakers who have doubtless often entertained you with feverish flights of oratory. The gift was taken from me at an early age."

"I was in the country visiting some friends when I was a little shaver, and on this particular farm was an ancient mule who persisted in disturbing the quiet of the atmosphere by continually braying. I said to Mandy, an old colored woman: 'That mule makes lots of noise.' 'Yes,' replied Mandy, 'if the old fool would only keep his mouth shut some folks would not know but what he was a horse.'"

BELIEVES IN KENTUCKY. "I think it is time to talk. I am a firm believer in the future of Kentucky, in the development of her resources, in the upbuilding of her business interests, and I say to you, my friends, it is within your power to promote her welfare to greater possibilities. This I believe, though I am aware much work will have to be done to accomplish this, but Kentucky men are fully equal to the task."

"For example, take the timber and coal products you are particularly familiar with. If you bring about a condition that will exclude the investment of capital to develop these, then you are the losers, but if, on the other hand, you invite co-operation of capital by the upbuilding of your State, her schools, stamping out lawlessness of whatever character by the elevation of the judiciary above the level of partisan politics, you have provided a safeguard by which capital coming within the borders of your State will profit. We will have to do it so that Kentucky will appear to them as safe as any State in the Union. I have had considerable business transactions with you people, and I propose to enlist my energies and do my utmost to bring about these conditions if given a chance."

WARMLY ENCOURAGED. When Col. Belknap had concluded, many ladies crowded to the railing and grasped his hand, proffering words of encouragement, and in this they were ably seconded by hundreds of the sterner sex. Judge Black followed Col. Belknap briefly, calling attention to the present obnoxious State administration.

Col. Belknap was agreeably surprised at the extent of to-day's demonstration on the reception accorded him. It is claimed by politicians here to have been the largest crowd which ever assembled in London to hear an address by a gubernatorial candidate. Col. Belknap left at midnight for Springfield, where he will be the guest of the Washington County Fair Association to-morrow.

NERVES GAVE WAY—PE-RU-N CURED

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began in January, 1902, to take your valuable remedy, Peru. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, nervous prostration, appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering with systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure. I will always be your debtor. I have already recommended Peru to my friends and neighbors and they all praise it. I wish that all suffering women would try it. I testify this according to the truth."

Mrs. Fanny Klavatscher, of Summitville, N. Y., writes as follows:

"For three months I suffered with pain in the back and in the region of the kidneys, and a dull, pressing sensation in the abdomen, and other symptoms of pelvic catarrh. But after taking two bottles of Peru I am entirely well, better than I ever was."—Mrs. Fanny Klavatscher.
